There are three separate sources of hazard in the ***Câu 914*** of supplying energy by nuclear power. First, the ***Câu 915*** material must travel from its place of manufacture to the power station. Although the power stations themselves are solidly built, the containers used for the transport of the materials are ***Câu 916***. There are normally only two methods of transport ***Câu 917*** namely road or rail. Unfortunately, both of these ***Câu 918*** close contact with the general public since the ***Câu 919*** are sure to pass near or even through, heavily ***Câu 920*** areas. Second, there is the problem of waste. All nuclear power stations produce wastes that in most cases will ***Câu 921*** radioactive for thousands of years. It is impossible to ***Câu 922*** these wastes no radioactive, and so they must be ***Câu 923*** in one of the inconvenient ways that scientists have invented. For examples, they may be buried under the ground, or dropped into abandoned mines or sunk in the sea. However, these methods do not solve the problem, since an earthquake could easily ***Câu 924*** the containers open. Third, there is the problem of accidental ***Câu 925*** due to a leak or an explosion at the power station. As with the other two, this is not very likely, so it does not provide a serious objection ***Câu 926*** the nuclear program. Nevertheless, it can happen. Separately, these three types of risks are a great cause for***Câu 927***. Taken together, though, the ***Câu 928*** of disaster is extremely high.
